Braving rain and hail, cricket fans make most of IPL final in Ahmedabad

AHMEDABAD: Widely thought to be the swansong of M.S Dhoni, the charismatic captain of Chennai Super Kings, fans left no stone unturned to paint the Narendra Modi Stadium yellow for the IPL on Monday. On the other hand, 'Aava De', the war cry of Gujarat Titans, reverberated at the stadium. Thousands of fans had braved the heavy rain and hail on Sunday to get to the match and the majority of them turned up even on Monday.

Sumith Shindagi, a resident of Mumbai, said he has been travelling to different cities just for his cricket god M.S Dhoni. "I waited until the postponement announcement. As the ticket is considered valid, I'm here to catch the action," he said. Deepak Amar Ayra, a businessman from Prayagraj, also extended his stay. "I am here with friends to support CSK. I hope Chennai wins, and if Dhoni has to retire, this will be his last chance to win," he said.

Some fans who had lost their tickets or whose tickets were torn, could not gain entry to the stadium. While the rain started during CSK's innings, fans waited patiently for the culmination of the game and the tournament. Nirman Shah, a student from Ahmedabad, was in a conundrum as his ticket got wet and the details on it became illegible. "We do, however, have the online QR code for our ticket, but the authorities will not accept it," Shah said. Police had to resort to light lathicharge to disperse a crowd at 6.30pm, as one gate was opened to let in spectators, and hundreds tried to enter by jumping the barricades. Officials said no major incident was reported.
